

YES/NO/MAYBE LIST

EXPLORING YOUR SEXUALITY

Indicate how interested you are in each activity with a yes/no/maybe and ask your partner/s to do the same. Discuss your responses together. Go beyond a simple yes or no. Use this list as a starting point and add other sexual activities pertinent to your own experiences. Ask additional questions like:

How willing are you to explore outside your identified sexual orientation? Are certain parts of your or a partners body off limits? What kind of sexual aftercare do you prefer? Do certain sexual acts or scenarios trigger post traumatic response? What other acts make you uncomfortable (being seen fully naked, eye contact during sex, etc.)? Do you have any medical conditions or allergies that affect your sexuality?

Used alone, this list is a great tool to help you identify and set personal boundaries better preparing you for your next sexual encounter.

Discussing turn-ons, desires and fantasies with partners can be fun. Y/N/M lists allow you to learn a lot about your partner/s and yourself opening the door to more fulfilling, satisfying sexual experiences and relationships.
